K-12 Writing Instruction Reboot Camp
Reading like writers: Using craft techniques to strengthen K-12 writing
July 23rd – 25th, 2019

To improve transdisciplinary literacy acquisition and multi-sensory instruction in a school, teachers and teacher leaders must work to develop a common language and plan for coherent writing instruction. This reboot camp is designed to help teachers and teacher leaders develop communication skills to work with students and work through adaptive challenges. Teachers and teacher leaders will learn how to use professional resources to improve student-centered writing instruction on a continuum of professional learning opportunities.

Reboot camp benefits include learning to:

- Employ generative student-centered writing instruction to empower teacher decision-making
- Understand critical elements of intentional and coherent writing instruction
- Interpret and use data/artifacts (static and dynamic) as a basis to inform writing instruction;
- Use student-centered language that promotes transdisciplinary literacy acquisition and instruction.
- Use professional resources effectively to support student-centered multi-sensory writing instruction.
- Investigate multi-tiered systems of support that promote transdisciplinary literacy acquisition.

Comments from reboot camp attendees:

“The experience was enlightening. I cannot wait to go back to my district and begin applying the concepts and knowledge gained from the week.”

“This has been one of the most powerful learning experiences! This reboot camp has open our eyes to so many opportunities to affect change for all students, teachers, support personnel and administrators in our district. Thank you!”
