Principal Points

Important

Dear Roadrunner Family,

I can't believe that we are in the second half of the third quarter already. Teachers and students are working hard in the classrooms every single day. We are keeping a strong focus on ensuring that our students are mastering the standards that will enable them to be successful on the reading, math, writing and science assessments that will be given in the upcoming weeks to our 3rd, 4th, and 5th grade students.

Please continue to communicate any questions or concerns that you may have to your child's teacher. We cannot stress enough the importance of ongoing parent-teacher communication.

As always, if you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to call.

From the Desk of Safety and Security:

Parents,

We are very concerned about the number of vehicles that are stopping in traffic lanes on University or Orange Avenues to drop off students. Please utilize one of the existing parking spaces on University to drop off your children in the morning, or you may use the parent drop off loop on Leavitt Avenue. We appreciate your understanding and your attention to this matter. It is our goal to ensure the safety of each of our students while they are at school each day.

Respectfully,
Ms. Andrea Hall

Counselor's Corner

Being different can be hard. The tendency for children to torment classmates who are different is puzzling when we realize that being different is natural. There are no absolutely identical human beings; even identical twins are slightly different than each other. Everyone varies in terms of shape, size and skin/hair/eye color. People also differ in gifts, strengths, personalities and abilities.

Once children LEARN (and it is a learned concept) that “different” is bad, scary or something to make fun of, they, in turn, become afraid of being different. Thus, this learned and cruel response to being different perpetuates itself. For many students and teens, social acceptance and belonging to a group are so important that they will conform to the rules even if it violates their individuality, their sense of what is right for themselves or what is right in the world. And worse, that need to belong and not be seen as different, can prompt some to torment or bully others.

Help your children accept their uniqueness and the uniqueness of others. For parents, what you say and do, is what your child will say and do.

-Mrs. Bowen
